A glance at the above programme will, it is presumed, be good evidence of the proprietor's desire to make his course substantially attractive to racers and patrons of the turf—the more so, as the pewter will be planked up to the winner or winners on the day of success. It is unnecessary to comment on the purses: no one will deny, for the opening of a new course, they are liberal in every way, and properly proportioned, so as to afford an opportunity for every kind of "animal," from the "scrub to the high-mettled racer," to come in for a chance for some of the "dust." But that every thing may be suited, and every taste catered for, the proprietor has engaged, from the celebrated Otey of Richmond, a first-rate riding saddle, padded, stitched, &c., secundum artem. Now, Messieurs, if there be not an opportunity for every one—from the blood to the buck—to suit his taste, then he must go to New Market for a better bill of fare.

RESIGNATION OF THE HONORABLE CAMPRELL P. WHITE.—There is an article in our paper to-day, which we publish with sincere and unaffected regret. We allude to the resignation of our high-minded, able, and faithful representative in Congress, the Honorable Campbell P. White. While we regret that he has pursued this course, we feel bound to say that the reasons offered by him for pursuing it, should be deemed satisfactory by every candid and liberal democrat. He has been a faithful public servant. Retiring and unostentatious, kind and courteous, and yet frank and manly in his deportment—indefatigable in his industry, and seeking more for usefulness than for fame, the City of New York has not sent a more trust-worthy, more serviceable, or more retirement inexpedient, and I did not hesitate to sacrifice private considerations in my anxiety to render whatever service might be in my power, to sustain prinsiples essential, in my judgment, to the general welfare.

The triumphant result of that election was bighly satisfactory to me, not only as a testimony of your entire approval of the leading measures of the Administration, but as an evidence that this District was immovable in its attachment to Democratic principles, with whatever violence these principles might, or may be assailed.

I therefore feel myself now at liberty to devote may attention to my private duties, and I have consequently determined, as the period of the general election is at hand, to tender my resignation of the high trust with which you have been pleased repeatedly to honor me.

It is my deliberate and conscientious conviction, that

It is truly gratifying to perceive by numerous indications, that the Democracy of the Union, will almost, if not universally unite in selecting as successor to President Jackson, a distinguished citizen of our own State, dent Jackson, a distinguished citizen of our own State, whose talents, services and patriotism, eminently qualify him to administer the Government in the spirit of compromise in which it had its origin, and to perpetants, principles essential to our peace, prosperity and unions.

I return my warmest thanks to my fellow-citizens for the many proofs they have given me, of their confidence and esteem, while acting as their representative in the councils of the nation; and in the retirement to which I am imperatively called, I shall not cease ardently to hope, that this city may long continue unimpeded in its rapid and unexampled career of commercial prosperity.

FARM NEAR ATHENS, GEORGIA, Saturday, Sept. 18th, 1835.

To the Editor of the New York American:

Sir: With sincere pleasure did I perceive in the Georgian, of the 10th instant, the letter of Mr. Vail, dated from Paris, 29th July list, and directed to yourself. So from Paris, 20th July lust, and directed to yourself. So far as a perfect accordance with him, relative to the fact, that Mr. Crawford refused in 1814, to bring forward claims against France, may be considered as a confirmation of his statement, I most cordially give it. The only difference between us, arises from my having been always under the impression, that the proposal to do so was made to Mr. Crawford by a member of the Diplomatic Corps, and not by Gen. Lafayette. I was not at the Hotel of the Legation at the time, but met Mr. Crawford at dinner, when he immediately communicated the circu stance, and the manner in which he had repelled it. *2 reply to it, 'said he, "was the declaration that no Ameri-can Minister could dare to present a single claim, how-ever just, against France, at a moment when all Europe, in a mass, was so hostilely armed against her." Those, sir, who retain a recollection of Mr. Crawford, need not be told of the striking effect produced on his manly vibe told of the striking effect produced on his manly visage, by the utterance of any scatiment that he strongly feit—nor he surprised at my saying, even at this late day, that the impression made on me, at that time, was indelible. The attempt to create sectional parties and divisions is carried home to the Opposition. A high culoglum is paid to the distinguished services of our present Chief Magistrate; and an excuest call is made upon the Democratic Republicans of the Union to unite upon a man who will carry out the principles of Andrew Jackson. It is needless to say that Martin Van Buren has been called unanimonsly to fill the high office of President of the United States. ment—indefatigable in his industry, and seeking more for usefulness than for fame, the City of New York has not sent a more trust-worthy, more serviceable, or more popular member to the House of Representatives. In reference to the measures of the democratic party, the people have always known where to find Mr. White His political opponents have never dreamed that he could be seduced from the support of his party, and his political friends have never for a woment questioned his fidelity. He well won, and has well preserved the confidence of the democratic party, and his retirement from public life will be deeply and generally regretted.

To the Democratic Electors of the Third Congressioned District of the State of New York:

It is known to many of my political friends that I was exceedingly desirous that I should not be presented as a candidate for your suffrages, to represent you in the present Congress.

I had served you with zeal and fidelity for six years, and the duty which I wed to my family, and to extensive private concerns, urgently demanded my withdrawall from the public service. Those friends to whom I which the Democracy were then engaged rendered my retirement inexpedient, and I did not hesitate to sacrifice private considerations in my anxiety to render whatever service might be in my power, to sustain principles casential, in my judgment, to the general welfare.

The next building on Devonshire st., also brick, was occupied by private families, and as a boarding house, from which some of the furniture was removed. The next, owned by Harvard College, was occupied by the Boston Chemical Printing Co., under the charge of Lemuel Blake and Henry Bowen, the damage to which was considerable. The adjoining four story brick building, owned by H. Codman, was also destroyed. It was occupied as a book bindery, by Marsh, Capen & Lyon, and insured to the amount of $10,000, and by S. R. The walls of all these buildings fell in, either during the fire or a few hours after, with injury to no one, as we learn, except a young man named isaac Parsons, whose skull was fractured. Part of the wall of the large corner building, with the chimney, fell upon the three story brick building adjoining on Water street, crushed in the roof and caused considerable damage to an extensive stock of stoves, grates, tin ware, &c., belonging to Bryent & Herman. The building and stock was also somewhat injured by fire: latter fully insured.

The fire was stopped in Water street towards Washington street, by a brick wall, in which was an iron door, and on Devonshire street, West side, by a brick wall, in which also was an iron door. The Atlas printing office came next, but sustained little injury except in the removal of some of their cases of types, which were thrown into pi.

It is my deliberate and conscientious conviction, that by a strict construction of constitutional powers alone, can we maintain the peace of the country, and preserve the integrity of the Union.

Under the influence of these sentiments, and in the belief that they were in unisor with the opinions of my constituents, it has been my pride and pleasure to give the Administration of your venerated Chief Magistrate, my sincere and zealous support in all its leading and important measures—the Bill to regulate Indian affairs—the in relation to the Bank of the United States; and finally, the effort to restore the National Currency of coin, by the passage of the Gold Bill—measures which in future times, when existing prejudices have pussed away, will be considered as demonstrating, that the civil service of its country.

STEAMBOAT EXPLOSION.—We learn from the Mobile Advertiser, that the steamboat Don Juan burst her boiler, while on her passage on the night of the 15th instabut 27 miles above that city. The engineer, Mr. Henry Thompson, and a fireman, an Indian, were killed, the first instantly,—and several other persons badly scalded, and otherwise injured, by the explosion. The Don Juan was towed back to Mobile next day, by the steamboat Andrew Jackson, despatched for that purpose. drew Jackson, despatched for that purpose.

The Executive Committee of the New York State Temperance Society, being aware that a report has been industriously circulated that it was their design to endeavor to dispense with the use of wine at the Lord's Supper, deem it to be their duty to disclaim utterly any ble. The apparent variance between Mr. Vail's account and my own is easily accounted for. I was occasionally absent from the Hotel of the Legation; he, as the Minister's private Secretary, was seldom or ever abroad. He, therefore, witnessed the arrival and entry of Gen. Lafayette, and heard the conversation between him and Mr. Crawford. I have, therefore, not the smallest doubt of the truth of his statement, and the incorrectness of my own impression relative to the individual through whom the proposal was made to Mr. Crawford, and which he so instantaneously and positively repelled.

Very tespecifully, sir, your most obedient servant, HENRY JACKSON. ble. In what form the fruit of the vine was used, the committee will not attempt to decide. In all their editorial articles on the subject, they have disclaimed having any thing to do as a society, with the sacramental use of wine, believing that the discussion of this question belongs more properly to ecclesiastical bodies. The ground the committee maintain, and which at two full meetings of the State Society, they were directed to maintain, in regard to wine and all other intexicating drinks, is, that their use, except for sacramental and medicinal purposes, is wrong to those who drink—wrong to society—and especially wrong to the 500,000 drunkards in our land, who can never be reformed until the total abandonment of all intoxicating drinks as a beverage takes place. By of all intoxicating drinks as a beverage takes place. By order of the Executive Committee. EDWARD C. DELAVAN, Chuirman.

The Baltimore Convention to the American People. The address is quite lengthy, and contains a clear, frank and able exposition of the views of the members of the Convention.

We are unable to publish it entire in this week's paper, it will be concluded in our next.

We copy the following Editorial remarks from the "Cincinnati Republican."—Helena (Arkansas) Herald., Convention Address.—"It is a document full of sound political doctrine, breathing patriotism in every line. The Convention is most ably defended from the foul aspersions thrown upon it by the Opposition The committee entr into a historisal detail of the causes which have led to the assembling of conventions, by which means concert of action could be secured to the Democratic party. They show conclusively that Jefferson, Madison, and Monroe, justified and approved the much superior to many sold at other places, as a church organ is to a jew's harp, with the tongue broke out. As to other musical instruments, furniture and fancy goods, they are far above any comparison. I will sell lower than any other person in this State—indeed, so low, that you will be astonished. All new Pianos, after-sold, I will deliver gratis, any distance under 40 miles. I also warrant and keep them in tune 12 months. I hire out Pianos, repair old ones, and take them in exchange. I will sell Chairs lower than any other person; and be very polite, particularly to Ladies.

TOUNG LADIES' SEMINARY .- The Young Ladies' Seminary, at Prince Edward Court-house, ginia, went into operation on the first of January, 2. The buildings devoted to this object are sufficient-1832. The buildings devoted to this object are sufficiently large to accommodate a hundred pupils; and with a little addition, should it be necessary, they may be made to accommodate a much larger number. They are all in good style and convenient; and the grounds adjoining them are in a high state of improvement, and well adapted to the object. The location is in itself pleasunt, and derives many additional advantages from its vicinity to other literary institutions. It is sufficiently retired for the purposes of the school, and is believed to be as healthy as any in the United States. It is about one mile and a half from Hampden Sidney College, and in a village sufficiently large and compact to furnish all necessary accommodation for board. The society of the neighborhood is moral, intelligent and refined.
